PsyLex user instructions

PsyLex is a structured mediation platform. AI helps both parties to a dispute find what they truly need and record a voluntary agreement.

> Legal information, not legal advice. PsyLex does not replace a lawyer or a psychologist and is not therapy. Participation is voluntary: you may pause or end the process at any time.

Two operating modes

Mode	Who leads the session	For whom
Mode A: Self-guided	Mediation AI agent	Party A and Party B without a live mediator
Mode B: For mediators	A human mediator with AI support	Party A and Party B + mediator

The mode is set by whoever created the room:

- an administrator created the room Mode A;
- a mediator created the room Mode B.

> Parties do not choose the mode themselves. The organizer of the room sets it.

Which instruction to read

Role	Document
Party A or Party B	parties.md
Mediator	mediator.md
Platform administrator	admin.md

In the app, click Help in the header or sidebar to read these instructions, download PDF / DOCX, or ask the chat assistant.

Administrators and mediators manage party accounts under Sides in their consoles (see the matching instructions). Parties see their role in the header as Party A or Party B, often with their case title (for example Party A · Claimant).

User guide

How to sign in

1. Open the PsyLex home page and click Login, Start on my own, or For Mediators .
2. Enter the login (format psylex_...) and password sent by the administrator or mediator.
3. Or open a Magic Link — a confirmation page appears; click Continue to sign in. The link is one-time and valid for 72 hours. After it is used, it becomes invalid.

> Self-registration is not available. An administrator (Mode A) or a mediator (Mode B) creates the account.

Interface language

The header or sidebar has an EN | UA switcher. The selected language is stored. Help, downloads, and chat-assistant replies use the same language.

Ask the Help assistant about waits, Sides, schedule, or Mode A/B if you need a quick answer from these texts.
